

From the desk of Dr Harry

Swine Flu Update – No Tamiflu for Kids

Harry Zehnirith MBBS (HON) FRACP

Roche says Tamiflu suspension for children will be unavailable in Australia until further notice.

However, the powder contents of the capsules can be mixed with jam, icecream or other sweetener in correct doses as a substitute until the suspension becomes available.

Check the following link <http://www.racgp.org.au/h1n1/33561>

This has occurred at a time when we in Australia, at least, are becoming less inclined to treat children with Tamiflu than we were even 6 weeks ago. Treatment is still indicated, however, for those who are severely affected or immune compromised.

Also visit Swine Flu Blog here.

(August, 2009)

From the desk of Dr Harry

Copyright oKIDokie Pty Ltd 2009